Clear skies take back seat for Biden

ANALYSIS
BY YONAH JEREMY BOB

The International Criminal Court’s decision that it has jurisdiction to probe war crimes against Israel is political and hypocritical, former UN and Israel Relations at the Washington Institute and former senior advisor to the Clinton administration, Mideast transitions expert Daniel Makovsky, told The Jerusalem Post on Thursday that it was “currently a mistake in not yet reaching this specifically on this decision at this stage, as this is not the final step.”

“I think it's not a legal decision – it's a political decision,” Makovsky said, is the administration's response to the ICC’s jurisdiction. The ICC’s stance is to only open probes in cases where it can guarantee a fair trial in the domestic court, where are tried. But there are later points in the legal process where it could consider the ICC’s jurisdiction. No one is so naive as to think that the decision was anti-Semitic. The Palestinians welcomed the ruling as a historic move in the direction of international law. This is particularly true, he said, when the ICC refuses to investigate current events like Iran and Syria, who commit horrible atrocities almost every single day. The ICC has not investigated any of these cases over the past decades.

While President Biden's policy speech, he is making clear that the US will engage Iran, and the administration has started to lift some sanctions. He did not mention Iran, but it is clear that the administration will be working towards a return to the nuclear deal. But there are other issues that the administration will be facing, such as climate change and the pandemic. The administration will also have to deal with the ongoing conflict in Myanmar and the war in Yemen. While Biden has not yet made any decisions on these issues, it is clear that he will be prioritizing them. The administration will have to work on these issues in the coming years. The roads will be uphill, but there are many positive signs that the US will be able to make progress on these issues. There is a lot of interest in the US to engage Iran, and the administration has started to lift some sanctions. It is clear that the administration will be working towards a return to the nuclear deal. But there are other issues that the administration will be facing, such as climate change and the pandemic. The administration will also have to deal with the ongoing conflict in Myanmar and the war in Yemen. While Biden has not yet made any decisions on these issues, it is clear that he will be prioritizing them. The administration will have to work on these issues in the coming years. The roads will be uphill, but there are many positive signs that the US will be able to make progress on these issues. There is a lot of interest in the US to engage Iran, and the administration has started to lift some sanctions. It is clear that the administration will be working towards a return to the nuclear deal. But there are other issues that the administration will be facing, such as climate change and the pandemic. The administration will also have to deal with the ongoing conflict in Myanmar and the war in Yemen. While Biden has not yet made any decisions on these issues, it is clear that he will be prioritizing them. The administration will have to work on these issues in the coming years. The roads will be uphill, but there are many positive signs that the US will be able to make progress on these issues. There is a lot of interest in the US to engage Iran, and the administration has started to lift some sanctions. It is clear that the administration will be working towards a return to the nuclear deal. But there are other issues that the administration will be facing, such as climate change and the pandemic. The administration will also have to deal with the ongoing conflict in Myanmar and the war in Yemen. While Biden has not yet made any decisions on these issues, it is clear that he will be prioritizing them. The administration will have to work on these issues in the coming years. The roads will be uphill, but there are many positive signs that the US will be able to make progress on these issues. There is a lot of interest in the US to engage Iran, and the administration has started to lift some sanctions. It is clear that the administration will be working towards a return to the nuclear deal. But there are other issues that the administration will be facing, such as climate change and the pandemic. The administration will also have to deal with the ongoing conflict in Myanmar and the war in Yemen. While Biden has not yet made any decisions on these issues, it is clear that he will be prioritizing them. The administration will have to work on these issues in the coming years. The roads will be uphill, but there are many positive signs that the US will be able to make progress on these issues. There is a lot of interest in the US to engage Iran, and the administration has started to lift some sanctions. It is clear that the administration will be working towards a return to the nuclear deal. But there are other issues that the administration will be facing, such as climate change and the pandemic. The administration will also have to deal with the ongoing conflict in Myanmar and the war in Yemen. While Biden has not yet made any decisions on these issues, it is clear that he will be prioritizing them. The administration will have to work on these issues in the coming years. The roads will be uphill, but there are many positive signs that the US will be able to make progress on these issues. There is a lot of interest in the US to engage Iran, and the administration has started to lift some sanctions. It is clear that the administration will be working towards a return to the nuclear deal. But there are other issues that the administration will be facing, such as climate change and the pandemic. The administration will also have to deal with the ongoing conflict in Myanmar and the war in Yemen. While Biden has not yet made any decisions on these issues, it is clear that he will be prioritizing them. The administration will have to work on these issues in the coming years. The roads will be uphill, but there are many positive signs that the US will be able to make progress on these issues. There is a lot of interest in the US to engage Iran, and the administration has started to lift some sanctions. It is clear that the administration will be working towards a return to the nuclear deal. But there are other issues that the administration will be facing, such as climate change and the pandemic. The administration will also have to deal with the ongoing conflict in Myanmar and the war in Yemen. While Biden has not yet made any decisions on these issues, it is clear that he will be prioritizing them. The administration will have to work on these issues in the coming years. The roads will be uphill, but there are many positive signs that the US will be able to make progress on these issues. There is a lot of interest in the US to engage Iran, and the administration has started to lift some sanctions. It is clear that the administration will be working towards a return to the nuclear deal. But there are other issues that the administration will be facing, such as climate change and the pandemic. The administration will also have to deal with the ongoing conflict in Myanmar and the war in Yemen. While Biden has not yet made any decisions on these issues, it is clear that he will be prioritizing them. The administration will have to work on these issues in the coming years. The roads will be uphill, but there are many positive signs that the US will be able to make progress on these issues. There is a lot of interest in the US to engage Iran, and the administration has started to lift some sanctions. It is clear that the administrator...
After ICC ruling, PA vows to charge Israelis for ‘war crimes’

Will Israeli Prosecution be forced to isolate or dialogue with ICC?

The ruling by the International Criminal Court, according to which it has jurisdiction over Israelis, has been widely condemned by Israelis and the international community. Israeli officials argued that the ICC was a professional legal institution, and that its investigations were made to advance its political agenda against Israel.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and others have dismissed the ICC as a venue that should be discredited and isolated at all costs. They have also argued the court’s dependency on the United States and the European Union.

Thetake-on-proponents of the ICC believe that the court is fighting the potential threat of Israeli violence in international law. They argue that the ICC’s investigations are needed to bring Israeli leaders to justice.

In October 2016, Israel allowed the ICC to visit, something it did not previously allow. The ICC is investigating Israeli crimes in the West Bank, which includes human rights violations and the principle of prosecuting war criminals.

Netanyahu blasted the ICC, saying it was “a foreign body that has no power to decide on the issues that are within the scope of the ICC.”

The ICC’s investigations are ongoing and will continue to be a source of contention between Israel and the international community. The outcome of these investigations will determine the future relationship between Israel and the ICC.
United Nations Secretary-General Antonio Guterres has thrown his support behind calls for an international peace conference under the auspices of the Quartet, which would resolve the Israeli-Palestinian conflict based on the pre-1967 lines. The long-sought goal is clear: To end the occupation and realize a two-state solution on the basis of the pre-1967 borders, in line with international law, relevant United Nations resolutions, and bilateral agreements, with Jerusalem as the capital of both states," Guterres said in New York on Thursday. He spoke at the start of the opening 2021 session of the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People. The United Nations remains committed to supporting Palestinians and drive us further from peace," Guterres said. Separately he also urged Israel to help the Palestinians achieve COVID-19 vaccines. United Nations Secretary-General Antonio Guterres pledged his support for an international peace conference to resolve the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. (

The US Senate voted 93-0 to support an amendment to the 2021 COVID-19 budget resolution that affirmed the country’s intention to keep its embassy in Jerusalem. It was put forward by Republican Senators Jim Inhofe of Oklahoma and Bill Hagerty of Tennessee. Inhofe tweeted that the amendment “would make the US Embassy in Jerusalem permanent, effectively preventing it from being downsized or moved. It’s an important message that we acknowledge Jerusalem as the capital of Israel.” Hagerty said that the amendment should not be controversial to anyone. “Jerusalem is the capital in the US for 25 years. Jerusalem was the eternal and indivisible capital of the Jewish state of Israel.” Hagerty said that Jerusalem was “the eternal and indivisible capital of the Jewish state of Israel.” He added that “establishing this embassy is paving the way for peace across the region and should be preserved. Now our allies there know we will stand with them.” The three opposing votes late Thursday were Democratic Senators Ron Wyden of Oregon, Elizabeth Warren of Massachusetts and Tom Carper of Delaware. The vote is largely viewed as symbolic since the Biden administration has already stated that it has no intention of relocating the embassy. When Biden was in the Senate, he supported the Comprehensive 1995 US Embassy Act, which mandated that the American Embassy be relocated from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem, in 1995. "The Special Coordinator continues to encourage Israel to help address the priority needs of Palestinians in the Occupied Palestinian Territories – and to support COVID-19 vaccine availability more generally, which is in line with Israel’s obligations under international law,” Guterres said.
Sourasky foci

29 of 30 serious COVID patients in Phase 1 trial

By Moshe Dayan

The couple had three children. Yad, who was 22 months of age, and later became a politician, followed in his father’s and mother’s footsteps. Yael, his sister, was named after the sister of Israeli prime minister Yitzhak Rabin. Their names were chosen by the family. Yad was aware of his infidelity, finally told him that she had enough, and they divorced in 1971.

LONG BEFORE THAT, in 1954, Ruth Dayan founded Miki, with which her name was always associated. In 1994, it was a successful, but it was also a brand of jeans, a line of women’s clothing, which promoted peace, feminism, and an end to the war in Lebanon. She was a committeewoman of the Palestinian National Authority and a member of the Israeli parliament.

Ruth Dayan died on March 27, 2014, at the age of 80. She was survived by her husband, Moshe Dayan, and their three children. She died of cancer at Hadassah University Medical Center, where she had spent most of her life working. She was also survived by her son, Yitzhak, and her daughter, Rachel.

Ruth Dayan, a matriarch of an Israeli dynasty, was one of Israel’s most famous families, of which she was a member. She was the daughter of David Ben-Gurion, the first prime minister of Israel, and the mother of Moshe Dayan, the second prime minister of Israel.

Ruth Dayan was born in Berlin on May 8, 1934, to parents who had fled the Nazis. She spent her early years in London, where she attended a Jewish school. In 1948, she moved to Israel with her family and became involved in political activities.

Ruth Dayan was a poet and writer, and her work was often praised for its insight into the complexities of life in Israel. She was also known for her political activism, and she was a member of the Knesset, Israel’s parliament, from 1984 to 1988.

RUTH DAYAN (left) and her family. (Optional)
Tens of thousands of people took to the streets of Myanmar’s capital on Tuesday to demand the release of detention and to protest against the military coup, despite a blockage on the Internet.

In an upwelling of anger in the wake of the military coup, protesters chanted, “Miliary, miliary, miliary, a republic should not have military dictatorship!” Bystanders offered them food and water. Late in the evening, a rumor of an anti-coup protest circulated and was denied by law- enforcers who told Reuters “no such protests are planned.”

Chanting and littering off footpaths, protesters said the message was shared by the military-run media Myawaddy. But Suu Kyi’s lawyer Khin Maung Zaw and 75 protesters who had been held told Reuters they had not seen it.

Suu Kyi’s National League for Democracy (NLD) party lost a historic November 8 elections in a landslide, and the generals have refused to recognize, declare, or accept the result.

Earliest, thousands marched on Yangon’s downtown and Yangon had been punished by the junta, with three-finger salute, a greeting used globally in 2012 by protesters who held up UN Dag’s flags and pictures of Aung San Suu Kyi, by monks, by students and by detained.

But for the protesters, the rose was in the darkness as peo- ple can’t get access to media. The junta drums in a shroud of ene- mous violence that strikes against the most of the districts of the city.

Thousands more took to the streets in Myanmar’s second city Mandalay and its mil- lions. The protesters showed some chants inside the Internet by the junta.

The protests grew due to a blockage of the internet, and the demonstration in Yangon was first to gather. All internet service providers and MRTV showed scenes praising the military.

Monitoring group NetBlocks Internet Observatory reported that internet access was 72% down across the country, saying, “at this critical time, the military’s actions to block important information to the people that would allow them to take control of the situation has failed to have the desired effect, as people request for comments. It is critical to maintain internet access for discussion, dissent, and human rights offices said that internet restrictions must be fully restored to ensure freedom of expression and access to information.”

“However, mobile network provider Telenor AS said authorities had blocked all mobile operators to temporarily shut down the data network, although voice and SMS services remained open.

Myanmar civil society groups appealed to international governments to react to the junta’s orders, saying they were “extremely troubling to ensure the military’s control.”

Biden says Trump should not get intel briefings

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - US President Joe Biden does not believe his predecessor Donald Trump should have access to intelligence briefings because of his “erratic behavior” and from his third wife, US actor Elaine Taylor, forced out of her job in 2010 by Trump.

Trump frequently denounced the intelligence community during his presidency, sparking an insurrection at the Capitol by calling in and fill up the truck as a road family. He was the second major role to get a competitive Oscar in a same year as Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire (2005), with Sophia Loren and Alec Guinness, and the same year as The Sound Of Music (1965), with Julie Andrews. The movie won an Academy Award for Best Picture and Best Actor for Plummer.

Biden said his view that Trump should not receive the briefings was not connected to the Capitol insurrection.

“Because of his erratic behavior unrelated to the insurrection, the Biden administration has determined that Trump should not receive any classified information, and that he notquate not outline at all. I just think that he is not a fit to receive any classified information, and I don’t think he is capable of understanding it,” Biden said.

Biden said he announced previously that the issue was under review.

The White House is optimistic about the results of a process to resuming peace talks as the country was bound by local law.

Biden said his third wife, British actress Elaine Taylor, forced out of her job in 2010 by Trump.

He had said he never said before, “not even in the shadow of his family, if I was taking a special trip I included crossing the song with other wild animals, or a “vulgar streak” for the raccoon and also a “vulgar streak” for the raccoon.

We may not be able to change the outcome, but at least I will do my hest to help the people of Myanmar but I can’t be there on the ground. I am very thankful to the people of Myanmar for all the kind words and support you have given me,” Biden said.

Biden extended a social media crack-down on Twitter on the president’s last major roles.

At this critical time, the military’s actions to block important information to the people that would allow them to take control of the situation has failed to have the desired effect, as people request for comments. It is critical to maintain internet access for discussion, dissent, and human rights offices said that internet restrictions must be fully restored to ensure freedom of expression and access to information.”

Christopher Plummer, a Canadian actor who starred in the Academy Award-winning film Sound of Music, died at the age of 91.

The Sound Of Music star Christopher Plummer dies at 91

Christopher Plummer, an accomplished actor for his role in ‘Beginners,’ at the 84th Academy Awards in 2012. (Image: Reuters)

He was the second major role to get a competitive Oscar in a same year as Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire (2005), with Sophia Loren and Alec Guinness, and the same year as The Sound Of Music (1965), with Julie Andrews. The movie won an Academy Award for Best Picture and Best Actor for Plummer.

Biden extended a social media crack-down on Twitter on the president’s last major roles.

At this critical time, the military’s actions to block important information to the people that would allow them to take control of the situation has failed to have the desired effect, as people request for comments. It is critical to maintain internet access for discussion, dissent, and human rights offices said that internet restrictions must be fully restored to ensure freedom of expression and access to information.”

US to drop Houthi terrorist designation due to Yemen crisis

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - The US intends to revoke the Houthi movement’s terrorist designation in response to Yemen’s humanitarian crisis, reversing one of the Trump administration’s most criticized last-minute decisions.

The move, confirmed by a State Department official on Friday, came a week after President Donald Trump died of a heart attack on November 25.

Trump died of a heart attack on November 25.

The US had designated the Houthis as a terrorist organization in 2010. That led to the election of a new president in 2021. That action was discovered by the Houthis, which is a sin of national outrage, with the Houthis claiming the US administration’s recent statements on Yemen, but had yet to see anything from the actual action.

The US describes Yemen as the world’s biggest humanitarian crisis, with 80% of its people in need.

Last month the US had a deadline that the Houthis would be able to control a famine on a scale not seen for nearly 40 years. Famine deaths have not been officially disclosed by the Houthis, and indicators have deteriorated across the country.

The US administration has said its priority was the “humanitarian needs of the people of Yemen.”

The Houthis have been a major force in the Yemen conflict since 2011. That led to the election of a new president in 2021. That action was discovered by the Houthis, which is a sin of national outrage, with the Houthis claiming the US administration’s recent statements on Yemen, but had yet to see anything from the actual action.

The US had designated the Houthis as a terrorist organization in 2010. That led to the election of a new president in 2021. That action was discovered by the Houthis, which is a sin of national outrage, with the Houthis claiming the US administration’s recent statements on Yemen, but had yet to see anything from the actual action.
Greece rolls out vaccinations to island outposts ahead of summer

ATHENS (Reuters) - Inhabitants of remote Greek islands received the COVID-19 vaccine last week as the government rolled out its inoculation campaign to include tiny villages, some with no more than a couple dozen inhabitants, after infections have been checked by distance and life has continued relatively undisturbed by the pandemic. The vaccination team to Kastellorizo, a small island that doesn’t have large hospitals and intensive care units could not continue so that people here feel safe and so operations will continue here and they want to escape the lockdown, they want a bit of normal life,” said Nikkil Beach Resort & Spa Dubai General Manager Hanna Azzi.

“Everything is closed in Paris. We have to come back home at 9 p.m., but here there is no curfew. So it’s very nice to enjoy the coffee, restaurants and evening entertainment,” said Khaled Kadi, 37, an insurance broker from Paris.

“Tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said. For 2020, tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said. For 2020, tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said. For 2020, tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said.

Foreign tourists in Spain fell to 51-year-low in 2020

While vaccinations are slowly being rolled out, it reported 29,604 new cases on Tuesday, down from recent highs of more than 50,000 a week, reducing hospitalizations and deaths, but many countries have still not done enough to tackle issues such as climate change and pollution.

The prince has previously come under criticism from a small number of holidaymakers for not using commercial aircraft, and took action to offset the cost of flying by helping to set up a new airline, which he owns part of.

“Everything is closed in Paris. We have to come back home at 9 p.m., but here there is no curfew. So it’s very nice to enjoy the coffee, restaurants and evening entertainment,” said Khaled Kadi, 37, an insurance broker from Paris.

“Tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said. For 2020, tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said. For 2020, tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said. For 2020, tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said.

Foreign tourists in Spain fell to 51-year-low in 2020

While vaccinations are slowly being rolled out, it reported 29,604 new cases on Tuesday, down from recent highs of more than 50,000 a week, reducing hospitalizations and deaths, but many countries have still not done enough to tackle issues such as climate change and pollution.

The prince has previously come under criticism from a small number of holidaymakers for not using commercial aircraft, and took action to offset the cost of flying by helping to set up a new airline, which he owns part of.

“Everything is closed in Paris. We have to come back home at 9 p.m., but here there is no curfew. So it’s very nice to enjoy the coffee, restaurants and evening entertainment,” said Khaled Kadi, 37, an insurance broker from Paris.

“Tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said. For 2020, tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said. For 2020, tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said. For 2020, tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said.

Foreign tourists in Spain fell to 51-year-low in 2020

While vaccinations are slowly being rolled out, it reported 29,604 new cases on Tuesday, down from recent highs of more than 50,000 a week, reducing hospitalizations and deaths, but many countries have still not done enough to tackle issues such as climate change and pollution.

The prince has previously come under criticism from a small number of holidaymakers for not using commercial aircraft, and took action to offset the cost of flying by helping to set up a new airline, which he owns part of.

“Everything is closed in Paris. We have to come back home at 9 p.m., but here there is no curfew. So it’s very nice to enjoy the coffee, restaurants and evening entertainment,” said Khaled Kadi, 37, an insurance broker from Paris.

“Tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said. For 2020, tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said. For 2020, tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said. For 2020, tourists spent 86.1% less in December than in the same month a year earlier, the national statistics agency INE said.
Israel for war crimes – this is pure antisemitism.

No, the notifications of two of the main issues by which war crimes suits could be filed are also central and experts in international law and as such there was no territory the ICC, neither Israel nor the US parties to the statute.

The Pre-Trial Chamber also opened the door for war crimes suits which could be filed against Israel for war crimes and that the text of the Rome Statute does not exclude filing war crimes suits against a state, or participate as a state in international criminal proceedings on its territory.

The Pre-Trial Chamber stated.

Its ruling with regard to the extent of the jurisdiction of the court is very important in two respects: First, the ICC's jurisdiction is national, so it cannot be expanded to include cases for which the ICC is not competent under the Rome Statute. Second, the court's jurisdiction is limited to cases in which the accused are nationals of states party to the Rome Statute.

The matter is complicated because the establishment at large.

The defense establishment, and all of its officials in which he attacked the decision to arrest warrants (whether in months or years off.

However, the number of patients in severe condition has doubled from 332 of whom were on ventilators. The fig- urs however, the number of patients in severe condition has doubled from 332 of whom were on ventilators. The figures however, the number of patients in severe condition has doubled.
A mong the 100 million people around the world who have recovered from COVID-19, scientists are turning to the cautions of a novel coronavirus variant to help them understand how the virus is able to continue to infect humans.

Recent case studies from the United States and the United Kingdom suggest the SARS-CoV-2 variant known as the B.1.1.7 variant is more transmissible, possibly because it evolved by accumulating a large number of mutations. The US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has called the B.1.1.7 variant the “UK variant” and said it is currently spreading more quickly than other strains.In the United Kingdom, South Africa and Brazil, cases are doubling at exponential rates. A concerning aspect is that the B.1.1.7 variant has been found to spread more easily than other variants, including the Delta variant, which was first identified in India and is now a significant threat in the United States.

As of February 15, 2021, the B.1.1.7 variant had been identified in 40 US states, and there were over 30,000 cases of the variant in the United States. The CDC has warned that the B.1.1.7 variant is a major threat to public health, and that it has the potential to cause a surge in cases and hospitalizations.

Scientists are also concerned about the potential for the B.1.1.7 variant to evade vaccines and therapies currently being used to treat COVID-19. This is because the virus is able to mutate rapidly, and it is not yet clear how effective existing treatments and vaccines will be against the B.1.1.7 variant.

While the B.1.1.7 variant is a cause for concern, scientists are encouraged by the fact that the virus continues to evolve and adapt. This suggests that there is still room for improvement in treatments and vaccines, and that there may be new treatments and vaccines that can be developed to combat the variant.

Scientists are also concerned about the potential for the B.1.1.7 variant to cause more severe disease. While the majority of people infected with the variant are experiencing mild or moderate symptoms, there are reports of more severe disease, including hospitalizations and deaths.

In conclusion, scientists are concerned about the potential for the B.1.1.7 variant to spread more easily and to cause more severe disease. They are also concerned about the potential for the variant to evade vaccines and therapies currently being used to treat COVID-19. However, they remain hopeful that there is still room for improvement in treatments and vaccines, and that there may be new treatments and vaccines that can be developed to combat the variant.
Immoral decision

The International Criminal Court at The Hague made a terrible decision on Friday in an unannounced manner. The court’s judges agreed that crimes were committed under Israeli occupation—under the regime led by Binyamin Netanyahu—during the second intifada (Palestinian uprising) in the West Bank and Gaza. They found Israel guilty of grave breaches of international law, including the crime of apartheid, in the territories occupied by Israel since 1967, namely Gaza and the West Bank. Granting itself jurisdiction over the territories par for the course, the court—up to the Rome Statute of 2002, which Israel and the US did not ratify—served notice to Israel and the Palestinians, for alleged war crimes. These could include past Israeli military operations like Protective Edge in 2014 against terrorist groups in the Gaza Strip as well as settlement construction in the West Bank.

As expected, Israel and the US responded by boycotting the court’s decision. “Friday, the International Criminal Court has passed a shared and shameful verdict,” White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki said. “On this question of international law, which is fundamentally a political institution,” Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said on Saturday, “This is refined antisemitism.” Netanyahu said “This court was created to prevent horrors like the Holocaust, not to make illegal wars and settle scores with democracies.”

The jump of the court’s conclusion is my dilemma. It marks an end to the historic opportunity of the US and Israel to engage with the court to prevent this moment from undermining the legitimacy and trust that Israel and the US enjoy in the world. How can I, as a US citizen and journalist, as an Israeli and a Palestinian, trust such a court?

To be clear, I support the principle of the court and have engaged with the US administration as well as the Israeli government to find a way to prevent this from happening. However, the court’s decision has now undermined the credibility of the court and the US administration.

Why did the court find these crimes? What is the evidence? What is the legal basis for the court’s decision? These are questions that need to be answered. I urge all concerned to engage with the court and the US administration to find a way to prevent this from happening.

I believe that the court’s conclusion is based on politics, not law. It is a political decision that will have serious implications for the future of the court and its legitimacy. I urge all concerned to engage with the court and the US administration to find a way to prevent this from happening.

The court’s decision is a political decision that will have serious implications for the future of the court and its legitimacy. I urge all concerned to engage with the court and the US administration to find a way to prevent this from happening.

I believe that the court’s conclusion is based on politics, not law. It is a political decision that will have serious implications for the future of the court and its legitimacy. I urge all concerned to engage with the court and the US administration to find a way to prevent this from happening.

I believe that the court’s conclusion is based on politics, not law. It is a political decision that will have serious implications for the future of the court and its legitimacy. I urge all concerned to engage with the court and the US administration to find a way to prevent this from happening.

I believe that the court’s conclusion is based on politics, not law. It is a political decision that will have serious implications for the future of the court and its legitimacy. I urge all concerned to engage with the court and the US administration to find a way to prevent this from happening.
COMMENT & FEATURES

T his is the last of our State of the World series. It’s a bit of a send-off for the journalists who dwell in the world of foreign reporting, one that’s been celebrating such a moment of progress in what has often been a cruel and twisted place, and an exercise in which we’re all a bit of a nation.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.

World leaders are looking at our country’s future and the future of the world. It is no surprise that the world looks to us for leadership. They say that there is a moment of truth in the United States.

But the world needs our help. This moment is not about us. It is about the world and its future. It is about the impact that we can have on the world and how we can contribute to the world.

In a moment of reflection, I want to thank our readers for sticking with us through the highs and lows of this year. We’ve been through a lot together, and we’re looking forward to what’s ahead.
\textbf{By NADAV TAMIR}

As a lawyer, when you are asked by your American friends if you have ever been to Israel, you might answer, “I have never been there.” And if you are asked how you learned about it, you might say, “I read about it in the media.”

The truth is, as a lawyer, I have never been to Israel. I have never had the opportunity to practice law in the country. But I have been able to learn about the country and its legal system through my work in the international law firm where I am employed.

My firm represents clients who have business interests in Israel, and we provide legal advice on a wide range of matters, including intellectual property, technology, and commercial law. We also represent Israel-based clients, and we are able to provide them with the same level of service that we provide to our international clients.

As a result, I have been able to develop a deep understanding of the Israeli legal system and the challenges that Israeli lawyers face. I have learned about the unique challenges that Israeli lawyers face, such as the high cost of living and the limited opportunities for advancement.

One of the most significant challenges that Israeli lawyers face is the lack of opportunities for advancement. The legal market in Israel is dominated by a small number of firms, and these firms offer the most prestigious positions and the highest salaries.

As a result, many talented Israeli lawyers are tempted to leave the country for better opportunities elsewhere. This is a particular problem for women, who are underrepresented in the legal profession in Israel.

Another significant challenge is the Israeli legal market’s over-reliance on big law firms. These firms offer the most prestigious positions, and many talented Israeli lawyers are tempted to leave the country for better opportunities elsewhere. This is a particular problem for women, who are underrepresented in the legal profession in Israel.

To address these challenges, we are working with Israeli law schools and bar associations to promote diversity and inclusion in the legal profession. We also offer mentorship and career development programs to help talented Israeli lawyers advance their careers.

In conclusion, the Israeli legal market faces significant challenges, but there are steps that can be taken to address these challenges and create more opportunities for talented Israeli lawyers.

\textbf{Aliyah and your legal practice – foreign lawyers in Israel}

\textbf{By YAARA DEITCHER}

Welcome to Israel’s cutthroat, highly competitive legal market. If you are a foreign lawyer with US experience with international law firms, then you could be exactly what we need! Israel’s legal market is the most saturated legal market in the world with approximately 60,000 active lawyers. Israeli law firms are looking for foreign lawyers to work as corporate and IP counsels.

There are two main features that come to mind when one thinks of working in Israel: the lack of opportunities and the high cost of living. Israel has a very high cost of living, and the legal market is no exception. The average salary for a lawyer in Israel is around $60,000, but this does not take into account the cost of living in the country.

In the past, Israeli law firms were more willing to take on foreign lawyers, but this has changed in recent years. Israeli law firms are now more interested in hiring Israeli lawyers, who are not only cheaper but also more familiar with the local market.

There are also more opportunities for international lawyers in Israel, especially in the public sector. The Israeli government is one of the largest employers of lawyers in the country, and it offers a wide range of positions.

In conclusion, if you are a foreign lawyer with US experience in international law, then you could be exactly what we need! Israel’s legal market is the most saturated legal market in the world with approximately 60,000 active lawyers. Israeli law firms are looking for foreign lawyers to work as corporate and IP counsels. There are two main features that come to mind when one thinks of working in Israel: the lack of opportunities and the high cost of living. Israel has a very high cost of living, and the legal market is no exception. The average salary for a lawyer in Israel is around $60,000, but this does not take into account the cost of living in the country.

In the past, Israeli law firms were more willing to take on foreign lawyers, but this has changed in recent years. Israeli law firms are now more interested in hiring Israeli lawyers, who are not only cheaper but also more familiar with the local market.

There are also more opportunities for international lawyers in Israel, especially in the public sector. The Israeli government is one of the largest employers of lawyers in the country, and it offers a wide range of positions.

In conclusion, if you are a foreign lawyer with US experience in international law, then you could be exactly what we need! Israel’s legal market is the most saturated legal market in the world with approximately 60,000 active lawyers. Israeli law firms are looking for foreign lawyers to work as corporate and IP counsels. There are two main features that come to mind when one thinks of working in Israel: the lack of opportunities and the high cost of living. Israel has a very high cost of living, and the legal market is no exception. The average salary for a lawyer in Israel is around $60,000, but this does not take into account the cost of living in the country.

In the past, Israeli law firms were more willing to take on foreign lawyers, but this has changed in recent years. Israeli law firms are now more interested in hiring Israeli lawyers, who are not only cheaper but also more familiar with the local market.

There are also more opportunities for international lawyers in Israel, especially in the public sector. The Israeli government is one of the largest employers of lawyers in the country, and it offers a wide range of positions.
KATARZYNA LIPKA, 35, holds a poster in her Warsaw last month that reads: ‘No restriction on pro-life political campaigning in places of worship.’

The Church considers all abortion to be murder. It was not an easy decision for the Roman Catholic Church officials to make, but they have made it. The decision was made after thousands of Polish women and men walked across the streets of the country to protest against the Church’s stance on abortion. It was a historic decision, and it has been met with mixed reactions from the public.

The government said it remained impartial toward religious groups and human rights organizations. However, the Church is a powerful institution in Poland, and its influence is felt in many areas of public life.

The role of the clergy in political campaigning is a contentious issue, and the Church has a long history of involvement in political affairs. In recent years, there have been allegations of corruption and abuse within the Church hierarchy, which has further eroded public trust in the institution.

POLAND’S Catholic Church, which is the largest religious denomination in the country, has a long history of involvement in politics. In the 2015 election, the Church endorsed the Law and Justice party, which won a majority in the parliamentary elections. The Church has been critical of the government’s policies, particularly its stance on abortion.

The Church has a large following in Poland, and its influence is felt in many areas of public life. The Church’s influence is particularly strong in education, where it has a significant role in the shaping of the curriculum and in the selection of teachers.

The Church’s influence in politics is also evident in its role in shaping public opinion. The Church’s teachings on abortion have been a major issue in recent elections, and it has been influential in shaping the views of voters.

The Church’s influence in politics is also evident in its role in shaping public opinion. The Church’s teachings on abortion have been a major issue in recent elections, and it has been influential in shaping the views of voters.
A young girl, Krishna Ella, has spoken with JTA about her experiences attending school while Jews were being rounded up in Nazi-occupied eastern Poland and her family’s eventual escape to Shanghai, China.

The interview was conducted by Arnold Brown, who wrote this story for JTA.

India's National News

By Arnold Brown

A HEALTH WORKER inoculates police personnel with the Covaxin COVID-19 vaccine at a civil hospital in Ahmedabad, India, last week. (Sam Panthaky/AFP/Getty Images/TNS)
TELEGRAPH CROSSWORDS

Across
1 Needle match shown in pub, against City (5,5)
6 Returning at eleven in cab (6)
10 Play in short trousers (5)
11 Hector beard-smeared English hospital department full of enthusiasm (9)
12 Wealthiest heading off, one refusing to face unpleasant facts (7)
13 Livermore initially adjule temperature in there (8)
14 Formal "Daughter" word describing unknown folk (9)
18 Child prodigy? It’s hardly surprising (8)
21 Daughter to take part in rambles—father restored plan (4,3)
23 Available for one worried about onset of flu (2,3)
24 Medium blocking conscious feeling (9)
25 Out of place at home, a pint (5)
26 Man-eating monster in fairy tale therefore equalled (4)
27 Angel badly managed, on the whole (2,3,5)

Down
1 Not as busy in practice (6)
2 Modern order cut by husband (6)
3 You have no choice, I put to killer I’m to reform (4,2,4,2)
4 Watch programmes that includes ad for make-up item (9)
5 Outspoken, a Parthian taking into sandwiches? (5)
6 Mouth of a brief Yorkshire morn (4)
7 Ousting money their end, aloud (2,3,5)
8 Monument in marble male trio sculpted (6,8)
10 Explosive piece about too much working (9)
11 A student painting outdoors (8)
17 Riddle of diamonds finally found on coach (8)
19 Incident in a fire hazard (20)
20 Feel acute embarrassment bunting legal document served on ambassador (6)
22 Sad thing about ending of one religious devotion (5)

Quick Crossword

Across
21 Daughter to take part in rambles—father restored plan (4,3)
22 Trojan, 23 Scribe, 24 Oft.
25 Wealthiest heading off, one worried about onset of flu (2,3)
26 Run off (7)
27 American dance (5)
28 Garden flower (5)
29 Useful thing (5)
30 Lobbyist, 22 Trojan, 23 Scribe, 24 Oft.
31 Outspoken, a Parisian
32 Out of place at home, a pint (5)
36 Man-eating monster in fairy tale therefore equalled (4)
37 Angel badly managed, on the whole (2,3,5)

Down
1 Scottish river (4)
2 2 Garden flower (5)
3 3 Boris-, Russian statesman (7)
4 4 Flight (5)
5 5 Run off (7)
6 6 Frighten (5)
7 7 Change (6)
8 8 Medicinal plant (7)
9 9 Tinned meat product (4)
10 10 Certain (4)
11 11 Heavily (5)
12 12 Useful thing (5)
13 13 American dance (5)

Sudoku

Easy

Hard

Word Builder

How many words of three or more letters, including plurals, can you make from the five letters, using each letter only once? No foreign words or words beginning with a capital are allowed. There’s at least one five-letter word.

Solution

5x5

Storme

Puzzles

Crossword

Quick Crossword

Sudoku

Word Builder

5x5

Solution

SOMERSET

Reference: Conran Octopus 1988 Edition

Wednesday's Hindostan Solution
Depeche Mode's Martin Gore inspired by unlikely sources

N iche to Central and South America, the band Depeche Mode, including its lead guitarist Martin Gore, has been embraced for its socially conscious messaging, making it a fitting choice for the launch of new initiatives in the region.

Depeche Mode, co-founder and primary songwriter for the band, zoomed into the article while working on the first track on his new EF, The Third Chimpanzee. In his home studio, he described how he had written the song, “The Terminal List,” as a reflection on the impact of technology on our daily lives.

Released Friday, the five-song instrumental EP is Gore’s first solo material in over ten years, and finds him using a mix of analog synths and vintage keybords to create a hypnogogic and pulsating sound.

Rath, after his dad, Daniel, used to show him how to mix, he’s always been interested in music and sound. “It’s all about using technology to create something that’s unique and personal,” he said.

“Terminal List” was inspired by a recent conversation with a friend about how technology can be used to connect with others and to create a sense of community.

Throughout the pandemic, Depeche Mode continued to release new music and perform virtually, even holding a virtual tour in support of their 35th studio album, Spirit. Gore noted that the band feels fortunate to have been able to stay connected with their fans and to continue creating new music.

“Art is a way to connect with people and to share your experiences,” he said. “It’s important to remember that music can be a powerful tool for positive change.”

Gore’s new EP, The Terminal List, is available now on all streaming platforms. For more information, visit DepecheMode.com.